Wife of Chauffeur Rowley Alleged to Have Written Intimidating Letters to Mrs. A. Holland Forbes.

It is possible that A. Holland Forbes of Fairfield who is one of America's foremost balloonists will retaliate in the suit brought against his wife by Miss Ida Rowley of Brooklyn by bringing proceedings against Mrs Forbes' accuser. Mr. Forbes will first try to ascertain if Mrs. Rowley is of sound mind. Mr. Forbes told a Farmer reporter last evening that he thought Mrs. Rowley was crazy because of the letters she had been writing to Mrs. Forbes suggesting that she could be kept quiet for a finan-cial settlement. One letter he said, cial settlement. One letter he said, stipulates that $500 would be an acceptable figure.

Mr. Forbes was not surprised when the suit for $75,000 followed the letters to his wife and told the Farmer reporter that it is a pure case of blackmail. Rowley, the chauffeur, he said, had not been in the employ of the family for over two years. Mr. Forbes said that he had never met any of the demands of the Rowley woman and although it was a disagreeable matter to be the mark in agreeable matter to be the mark in such a case he had assurances from his lawyers that with the evidence he had in his possession that the case was not dangerous.

LATEST CREATION

Chicago, Sept. 3.—The National Association of Retail Milliners assembled at the Fine Arts Building last inight launched the aeropiane as the new style of headgear, put a ban on the peach-basket hat and decreed the three-cornered hat of the Louis XVI days as the proper bonnet for the coming Winter months.

The new creation in millinery resembles an airship in shape, having two long feathers on either end and a curved rim. Its dimensions are 20 by 18 inches, and because of its light trimmings it weighs considerably less than a pound.

Fairly Whitney sailed with Peary on the Roosevelt on July 9, 1908. Frank Carnegie, nephew of Andrew Carnegie, was to have gone with him, but declined a few weeks before his departure. Before he went Whitney sail he would hunt in Grant's Land and would preserve specimens for the Bronx Park collection.

He left the Roosevelt at Etah and went hunting for musk oxen. He was left in charge of a supply of provisions for Dr. Cook should he be found. Harry Whitney is a son of Stephen Whitney of this city.

The Baby Turtle. Turtles lay their eggs in the sand and let the sun hatch them out. They do not lay them all in one place probably because they think it safer to scatter them. Then, even though one be stolen or broken, the others may escape. The mother turtle covers them all carefully up, one after another, with a thin sprinkling of sand and then apparently never gives them another thought, considering her maternal duty ione. Certain it is that she has never been discovered going near these egg bables again, and when they batch at last the tiny soft backed creatures at once begin crawling around in search of files and other food as independentmother in the world. A little girl who found one of these odd oblong turtle eggs on a sandy river bank in Louisiana took it home and put it in a teacup on the table for safe keeping. A few hours later a slight noise was noticed in that direction, and on looking in the cup again she found a baby turtle, full fledged, but tiny, scrambling about among the bits of its broken eggshell

Cockades and Buttons.
The cockade originated simply in the knot of ribbons or strings by which the broad flaps of the seventeenth century round hat were "cockeá" or drawn up to the brim in fine weather, and thus originated the three cornered hat as well as the cocked hat of later times. There was nothing specially military about the usage, as the ignorant assert. The same strings survive in the loops of the hats of bishops and other ecclesiastical dignitaries in Great Britain, in the strings of the hats worn by French cures and Spanish and Italian padres and in the cords some livery servants. It naturally became the custom for military men to "cock" their hats with the livery color of the prince they served, and as the Hanoverian color was the convenient one of black the "black cockade" became associated in the minds of the people with military uniform. In an old Scotch song of Shirramuir, citing "Woodword's Heraldry," we read of "the red coat lads with black cockades," and a knot of white ribbons was naturally chosen as the badge of their opponents. When the old use of the strings was forgotten the knot, in the form of a rosette of ribbon, survived, just as did the buttons on the backs of our coats, which were intended to fasten back the flaps in riding or marching.-"Justice of the Peace."

Striking a Comet.

If we ask the effect of a comet's striking the earth we will readily see that if the head of the comet were composed of bowlders a collision would have disastrous consequences. A rain of millions of great meteoric stones would, of course, bring catastrophe. If, however, it were merely a rain of small particles or dust we might never become conscious of it, for the particles would never reach us. They would be fused into gas through friction with our atmosphere many miles before reaching the surface. If the gases liberated by friction were in excessive volume we might suffer discomfort or even disaster. It is estimated that hundreds of millions of meteoric particles strike our atmosphere every day. This would be a serious matter if we were not protected by our great sheltering envelope of air. Occasionally a meteoric bowlder is large enough to resist the heat generated by this friction and reaches the surface. This we call a meteorite. The now established

"Choir." Churchgoers who follow the service in their prayer books would certainly miss the "dear old phrase" concerni quires and places where they sing, and in time the old fashioned "quires may be made new fashioned again by the coming of rationalized spelling "Choir" was a most unnecessary of rage upon the language. The old Eng-which are still seen on the hats of lish "quer" or 'quere' became quite naturally "quyer" or "quire," and so it remained until the end of the seventeenth century, when somebody seems to have introduced "choir" beause it looked more like the French "choeur," as if that were a valid reason. There could have been no danger of confusing a church "quire" and a "quire" of paper, which is a different word, the French "cahler," probably from Latin "quaternarium." a collection of four leaves.-London Standard. Locked Shah In House of Commi A shah of Persia, who made a state visit to England in 1873, had a curlous experience in the distinguished strangers' gallery of the house of commons. He soon got tired of watching the legislators at work, but when he made a move to go he was told he could not leave the gallery. It happened at that moment that a division was called, and in accordance with the practice which then prevailed all the doors of the house were locked until the vote was taken. Mr. Gladstone made an interesting comment on the incident. "It is," he wrote in his journal.
